WHO IS IT FOR?

People working with young children today are faced with the question of how to help them incarnate in a healthy way, into themselves and into the world.

Health problems such as dyslexia, autism, anxiety and asthma, and concerns about behaviour and discipline issues are all symptoms of our time.

Educators, doctors, therapists, curative educators and parents are increasingly called on to work together.

An inspirational link between us all is the study of the human being, developed from the indications of Rudolf Steiner.

Throughout the course there will be an emphasis not only on our work with the young child, but also on the path of inner development that we need to follow, in order to stay fresh and creative in our work.

Each workshop will be led by an international visiting expert and lectures will be supported by opportunities for discussion and artistic deepening of the themes.

CPD

This course offers continuing professional development (CPD) for your existing work.
